Cestari Highlights Multipurpose Citrus Juicer as Winter Fruit Season Reaches Its Peak

November 02, 2026

LITTLETON, MA - November 02, 2026 -
Cestari is drawing attention to its 5-in-1 hand juicer as the winter citrus season reaches its seasonal high point, offering home cooks a single tool designed to handle the surge of oranges, lemons, limes and grapefruit that arrive in markets during the colder months.

The manual citrus juicer anchors a tool built to perform several kitchen tasks. The design features both large and small reamers to accommodate fruit of different sizes, a built-in measuring cup for portioning juice, a grater for zest, an egg separator and a corn shucker. By combining these functions, the tool addresses a range of food preparation needs that commonly arise during the holiday cooking season.

Winter marks the time of year when citrus flavor and availability are at their strongest, making it a natural period for cooks to incorporate fresh juice and zest into their meals. Fresh juice supports holiday cocktails, while reamed citrus and grated zest contribute to curds, dressings, marinades and baked goods. The tool's measuring cup allows cooks to track yield as they work, a feature relevant to recipes that call for precise quantities.

"Citrus is at its best in the winter months, and home cooks often find themselves juicing far more fruit than they do at any other time of year," said Susan MacDowell, spokesperson for Cestari. "The goal behind a single tool with multiple functions is to reduce the clutter of specialized gadgets and give cooks something practical they can reach for throughout the season."

The company notes that interest in winter citrus recipes tends to climb as the holiday season approaches, with cooks preparing everything from festive beverages to lemon curds and vinaigrettes. The combination of reamers, a measuring cup and a grater in one unit is intended to streamline the steps involved in these preparations.

"A tool should work as hard as the person using it," MacDowell added. "Bringing together reaming, measuring, grating and a few additional functions in one piece reflects the way many families actually cook when the kitchen is busy during the holidays."

The juicer joins a catalog of kitchen tools from the company, each backed by a lifetime guarantee that reflects an emphasis on quality and durability. Cestari maintains a blog and news room where it shares cooking tips, product information and updates related to the broader kitchenware industry. The company also offers a warranty registration service for its products.
