

Avasia Launches New Eco Packaging For Prenatal Products

July 05, 2016

July 05, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Beaverton, Oregon based prenatal products company Avasia, has announced a change to the way they are packaging their products. The company has revealed that they will now be using eco packaging.

A spokesperson for the company states, "From this point on, all goods that are dispatched directly by Avasia will be in eco packaging, all using 100 percent recycled materials."

The company states that this change is in accordance with their goals of always providing the best in products and services to their customers. Avasia offers a number of products for expectant mothers, as well as new mothers, in addition to providing information regarding breastfeeding, IVF, and various other parenting related topics.

The spokesperson states, "Nowadays you don't have to sacrifice quality when you want to protect the environment." The company claims that the high quality packaging will help them to provide the best in services, and that they will be urging people to use the packaging again and again, wherever they can. If they cannot use it again, Avasia urges them to recycle.

More about the new packaging can be seen on the company's official website at avasia.com. The company spokesperson says that all products sent by Avasia will have the new packaging, and those who are truly trying to make a difference in the environment will find it to be a good place to start. Avasia states that they hope all of their customers will appreciate the company's attempt to help improve the environment for future generations, another thing that the company strives to do by providing high quality products for pregnancy and beyond.

The spokesperson states that they use only the best quality ingredients, and that all of their supplement products are manufactured in an up to date facility that carries the highest certifications. All of the products offered by Avasia carry the advice of eminent doctors and scientists, to ensure that the products are safe for mothers and babies.

Avasia states that they invite all mothers or anyone interested in learning more about their products and their eco-friendly packaging to follow the company on their official Twitter page at <https://twitter.com/AvasiaPrenatal>.
