Air Pro Master Expands HVAC Services to Reno, Nevada With New Location

November 09, 2026

LAS VEGAS, NV - November 09, 2026 -
Air Pro Master LLC, a family-owned heating and cooling company, has opened a new service location to bring its full range of HVAC solutions to residents and businesses in Reno and Sparks. The expansion, which launches on November 15, marks the company's entry into northern Nevada after nearly two decades of serving the Las Vegas region.

The new Air Pro Master Reno Nevada location, situated on Terminal Way, will offer around-the-clock emergency service alongside the company's established menu of air conditioning, heating, solar, and insulation work. The move responds to growing demand for reliable climate control services across the greater Reno area, where seasonal temperature swings place significant strain on residential and commercial systems.

Founded in 2005, Air Pro Master began as an air conditioning specialist before broadening its scope to include heating, plumbing, and solar services. The company's certified technicians work with major equipment brands and handle projects ranging from routine tune-ups to complete system replacements. With the Reno opening, the same service model will now be available to customers throughout the region.

Among the offerings now available locally is heating repair Reno Nevada by Air Pro Master, a service aimed at households and businesses preparing for colder months. The timing of the mid-November launch aligns with the onset of the heating season, when furnace and heat pump failures tend to peak.

"Opening in Reno has been a long-term goal, and launching ahead of the winter season allows the team to support the community when heating systems are under the most strain," said James, General Manager at Air Pro Master. "The focus is on understanding each customer's situation and explaining the available options clearly, whether that means a straightforward repair or a full replacement."

The new location provides the complete slate of hvac services Reno Nevada by Air Pro Master, including air conditioning repair and installation, heat pump service, furnace maintenance, commercial HVAC work, and WiFi and smart thermostat installation. The company also offers blown-in insulation and solar panel repair, giving area customers a single point of contact for a range of home comfort and energy needs.

To support ongoing system reliability, Air Pro Master maintains Gold and Platinum care plans that include scheduled maintenance and regular inspections. The company also offers seasonal promotions, financing options, and a referral program for customers across its service areas.

"Expansion into a new market comes with a responsibility to meet the same standards customers in Las Vegas have come to expect," James added. "The team in Reno is trained to deliver consistent, dependable service at any hour."

Air Pro Master's 24/7 availability extends to the new Reno operation, ensuring that urgent heating and cooling issues can be addressed outside of standard working hours. The company emphasizes clear communication with customers, encouraging detailed descriptions of problems to support an accurate and efficient response.

Air Pro Master is a family-owned HVAC and plumbing company based in Nevada. Established in 2005, the company serves both residential and commercial customers with air conditioning, heating, solar, insulation, and plumbing services, and maintains a staff of trained and certified technicians across its service areas.
