

Preneed Specialist Highlights The Importance Of A Funeral Pre-Planning Checklist

July 29, 2016

July 29, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Preneed Specialist has highlighted the need for a checklist that people can use for preplanning their funeral. The company states that preplanning is essential in being fully prepared for the inevitable and in helping family and loved ones to better handle the grieving process.

"People don't want to think about funerals, and often, loved ones are so engrossed in their own grief that planning can be virtually impossible," says Brian Beck, president of Preneed Specialist.

The company states that preplanning takes the stress off loved ones, and gives them the time that they need to grieve properly. The checklist for preplanning funerals can help consumers to have the funeral that they want, with the specific songs, prayers, and even pallbearers that they choose, while taking the pressure off family members during this difficult time.

The preplanning checklist includes everything related to a funeral from flowers to pallbearers to requests for donations to charities. The company states that it can simply be printed off, filled out, and then taken with the consumer when they go to speak with a local funeral director.

"This way, you have everything that you want all organized into a document that you can easily deliver to your chosen funeral director," states Brian Beck. "You'll get the funeral that you want and your family will have time to grieve your passing as they should."

The checklist is designed to provide peace of mind both to the consumer filling it out and more specifically, to friends and family upon his or her passing. The company states that planning the service in advance allows consumers to specify the exact type of service that they want, and allows the consumer to make the difficult decisions about certain aspects that can often leave grieving families uncertain.

It allows the consumer to choose whether or not a wake or visitation should be set up prior to the service, and everything about the service itself, including where it should be held, how long it should last, and various other aspects.

Meanwhile, Preneed Specialist is a company that offers print, direct mail, and social media advertising to funeral homes and the pre-need industry. This allows them to spread the word about how their services can benefit people.
