Central Plumbing, Heating & Air Conditioning Positions Itself as Single-Source Home Comfort Provider Across Bucks and Montgomery County

November 03, 2026

Upper Southampton Township, Pennsylvania - November 03, 2026 -
Homeowners across Bucks and Montgomery County live in a wide mix of properties, from century-old houses with aging pipes and oil or gas boilers to newer suburban developments with modern systems. When a pipe bursts, a furnace quits in January or a bathroom project begins, many residents find themselves coordinating a separate plumber, heating contractor and remodeler on their own. Central Plumbing, Heating & Air Conditioning is working to reduce that fragmentation by offering plumbing, heating and air conditioning services under a single company that has served the two counties since 2001.

Rather than specializing in one trade, the company covers a full range of residential and commercial needs. On the plumbing side, services include emergency repair, drain cleaning and hydro-jetting, sewer line inspection and trenchless repair, leak detection, tank and tankless water heater installation and repair, and fixture replacement. From its base in Southampton, Central Plumbing serves communities including Warminster, Feasterville, Trevose, Langhorne, Newtown, Doylestown, Yardley and Chalfont in Bucks County.

Heating work spans furnace, boiler and heat pump repair, maintenance and replacement, covering both gas and oil equipment. Technicians are trained on modern condensing systems as well as older atmospheric boilers still common in the region, and the company also installs radiant floor heating, ductless mini-split systems and thermostats with smart-home integration. Air conditioning offerings include central AC installation, repair and tune-ups, ductless mini-splits, indoor air quality products such as purifiers, humidifiers and dehumidifiers, and high-efficiency upgrades. The company says it performs load calculations to size equipment properly and avoid the short-cycling caused by oversized or undersized systems. These services extend into Montgomery County towns such as Blue Bell, Horsham, Fort Washington, Ambler, Glenside, Willow Grove and King of Prussia.

The company also handles remodeling projects, including bathroom remodels, kitchen plumbing upgrades, basement bathrooms and wet bars, walk-in showers and accessible bathroom modifications, coordinated under one contractor. Its technicians work with major equipment brands including Carrier, Trane, Lennox and Rheem for HVAC, Weil-McLain for boilers, and Rinnai and Bradford White for water heaters.

"Many households in this area are juggling systems of very different ages, and that often means calling several contractors for one problem," said a spokesperson for Central Plumbing, Heating & Air Conditioning. "The goal is to handle diagnosis, installation and follow-up through one licensed team so residents are not left coordinating the work themselves."

Service begins with a diagnosis and a written upfront estimate before work starts, followed by completion by licensed technicians, clean-up and a workmanship warranty with follow-up. The company provides 24/7 emergency service with a stated response time of about 60 minutes, applies no additional charge for after-hours emergency heating calls, and offers a preventive maintenance plan with discounted tune-ups and priority scheduling. Technicians are PA-licensed and insured, with NATE-certified HVAC specialists on staff.

"Transparency and training matter in this trade," the spokesperson added. "Customers should understand the scope and cost before any work begins, and the people in their homes should be qualified for both newer and older equipment."
