

Bandpass Design Extends Black Friday and Cyber Monday Sale to a Full Month in November 2026

November 04, 2026

Edmonds, Washington - November 04, 2026 -
Bandpass Design, a handcrafted hardwood game table maker based in Edmonds, Washington, has announced that its Black Friday and Cyber Monday promotion will run for the entire month of November 2026 rather than being confined to the traditional holiday weekend. The extended shopping window gives customers four weeks to secure promotional pricing on the company's made-to-order game tables.

The month-long format addresses a common challenge for shoppers considering a significant furniture purchase, who often feel pressured to decide within the span of a single weekend. By opening the promotion across November, Bandpass Design allows customers to research wood options, compare table styles, and plan a purchase without the time constraints associated with a typical Black Friday event.

The promotion covers the company's three main tables. The Dresden converts from a dining table into a dedicated board game surface and includes built-in cup holders, dice bins, and player stations. The Firefly serves as a coffee table with a built-in gaming surface beneath a removable top, along with storage drawers for casual play. The Mimosa is a compact hardwood playing card table sized to fit in a den or nook for card games, dominoes, and smaller board games. Each table is built from solid walnut, cherry, white oak, or maple and is designed to function as everyday furniture while offering dedicated gaming features.

All tables are handcrafted to order in the company's Washington state workshop. Because each piece is built individually after an order is placed, delivery for purchases made during the November promotion is expected in spring 2027. The company notes that the promotion is intended as an opportunity to lock in Black Friday pricing now for a table that arrives next spring, and it is not positioned for holiday delivery.

"Furniture of this kind deserves more thought than a crowded weekend allows," said AJ Hansen, founder of Bandpass Design. "Extending the promotion across the whole month lets people take their time with the decision, choose the wood and configuration that suits their home, and still take advantage of the pricing."

Hansen added that the made-to-order approach shapes the timing of the offer. "These tables are built one at a time in Washington, so a purchase in November is really a reservation for a spring arrival. The extended window gives customers the chance to plan around that timeline rather than rush it."

The promotional pricing applies to the Dresden, the Firefly, and the Mimosa throughout November 2026. Customers can select from the available hardwoods and customize game fabric and other details at the time of order. The company also maintains resources such as buying guides, maintenance guides, fabric guides, and interior design tips to assist with the selection process.
