Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc. Expands Sanitation Services With Portable Toilet Rentals in Shelby, NC

November 05, 2026

SHELBY, NC - November 05, 2026 -
Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc., an established provider of waste management and sanitation solutions, announced the introduction of portable toilet rentals in Shelby, NC. The service expansion addresses increasing demand for accessible sanitation facilities at construction sites, public gatherings, and private events. The addition broadens the company?s existing services while responding to changing sanitation requirements throughout Shelby and surrounding communities.

The announcement comes as construction activities and organized events continue to create demand for temporary restroom facilities across the region. Portable sanitation equipment provides an alternative when permanent restrooms are unavailable, insufficient, or impractical for a particular location. Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc. introduced its rental program to accommodate these circumstances while maintaining established procedures for equipment cleanliness, maintenance, and service coordination.

The company?s portable sanitation offerings are designed to accommodate different types of gatherings and work environments, including corporate functions, public festivals, weddings, and construction projects. These settings often require temporary restroom arrangements that account for attendance, duration, and available infrastructure. By offering multiple rental configurations, Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc. aims to address the varying logistical requirements associated with temporary sanitation services.

Portable restroom availability is an important consideration for event organizers and construction contractors responsible for maintaining appropriate facilities. Outdoor celebrations may take place in locations without permanent restroom infrastructure, while construction sites frequently require sanitation equipment throughout different project phases. Temporary facilities help address these practical needs, particularly when organizers must coordinate accessibility, placement, maintenance schedules, and anticipated usage.

The service expansion also reflects broader developments within the portable sanitation industry, where hygiene, equipment functionality, and environmental considerations influence purchasing and rental decisions. According to a 2022 report cited by the Portable Sanitation Association International (PSAI), demand for portable sanitation solutions was expected to increase significantly in subsequent years. This industry outlook provides context for the company?s decision to expand its sanitation offerings.

Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc. reported investing in updated equipment intended to improve user comfort while limiting environmental impact. Its portable restroom units incorporate modern flushing systems, ventilation features, and hand sanitation options designed to support cleanliness and convenience. These components address common concerns associated with temporary restroom facilities, including odor management, hygiene accessibility, and the overall functionality of equipment used in outdoor environments.

Equipment maintenance represents another component of the company?s rental program, particularly for facilities serving multiple users over extended periods. Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc. states that its portable restroom units undergo cleaning and inspection before and after each event. These procedures are intended to maintain sanitary conditions, identify equipment concerns, and prepare rental units for subsequent use across different locations.

The company also offers rental arrangements tailored to individual project requirements rather than limiting customers to a single equipment configuration. Available options range from individual portable restroom units for smaller gatherings to larger quantities intended for major events. This approach allows event planners and contractors to consider expected attendance, project duration, available space, and operational requirements when determining temporary sanitation needs.

The introduction of portable toilet rentals in Shelby, NC, adds another service category to Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc.?s existing waste management operations. The company also provides septic system installation, pumping, maintenance, repairs, and related water and sewer services. Adding temporary sanitation equipment allows the business to address needs associated with both permanent wastewater infrastructure and locations requiring short-term restroom access.

Beyond its equipment and maintenance services, Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc. maintains an educational component through information published on its website. The company reports sharing resources concerning sanitation practices, waste management, and related industry considerations. Such materials can help property owners, event coordinators, and contractors better understand the practical requirements involved in maintaining sanitary facilities and managing wastewater responsibly.

A company representative described the expansion as part of an effort to respond to changing community requirements while maintaining established service standards. ?Our primary goal is to offer comprehensive solutions that address the evolving needs of our community,? the representative stated. ?By adding portable toilet rentals to our suite of services, we are better positioned to support our clients? diverse needs while adhering to the industry?s highest standards of quality and care.?

The October 2023 announcement represents an expansion of Wesson Septic Tank Service Inc.?s sanitation operations in Shelby and neighboring communities. By introducing temporary restroom equipment alongside its established septic and wastewater services, the company has broadened the range of sanitation needs it can address. The development reflects the continuing role of portable sanitation facilities in supporting construction activity, community events, and other settings where permanent restroom access is limited.
