Galveston Sea Ventures Highlights Private Sunset Cruise Experiences

November 09, 2026

GALVESTON, TX - November 09, 2026 -
Private boat excursions offer visitors an opportunity to experience Galveston's coastal surroundings from a different perspective, and Galveston Sea Ventures includes evening sightseeing as part of its recreational boating services for 2026. The Galveston-based charter company operates one-hour private sunset cruises for groups of up to six passengers, combining views of Galveston Island with opportunities to observe dolphins in the surrounding waters. The excursions offer an alternative to the company's fishing-focused trips while maintaining a smaller-group setting.

A sunset cruise in Galveston, TX is listed among the company's available private excursions, with trips starting at $225 per group. Each outing accommodates up to six passengers and lasts approximately one hour. The experience centers on the scenery surrounding Galveston Island as daylight fades, with dolphin observation included as part of the trip. Wildlife sightings depend on natural conditions, rather than a guaranteed encounter, making the surrounding marine environment part of the experience.

The company's 2026 trip offerings reflect several ways passengers can spend time on the water, from short sightseeing excursions to extended offshore fishing charters. Its fishing services include deep-sea trips lasting six to eight hours, with opportunities to pursue red snapper, kingfish, ling, and amberjack. Bay and jetty fishing excursions range from two and a half to four hours and target species such as redfish, speckled trout, and sheepshead. These shorter trips are also identified as an option for families interested in fishing closer to shore.

Additional fishing options include dedicated shark trips, nine-hour red snapper excursions, and a six-hour nearshore and jetty combination trip. Shark fishing trips generally last four to six hours and target sharks, kingfish, and cobia. The specialized red snapper excursions focus on offshore fishing for the Gulf species, while the combination trip allows the captain to select between bay waters, jetties, and nearby rigs based on prevailing conditions. All listed fishing trips accommodate up to six passengers and are priced per group.

Galveston Sea Ventures also operates sightseeing excursions beyond its sunset cruises. Its one-hour dolphin tours explore Galveston Harbor, giving passengers an opportunity to observe the waterfront and surrounding wildlife. Two-hour private birding tours provide a guided look at the area's birdlife from the water, including opportunities to observe coastal species. These offerings give passengers options that do not require fishing experience or a full-day commitment.

Founded in 2015 by owner and operator Captain Shane Cantrell, Galveston Sea Ventures developed its business around fishing charters and private recreational boat excursions. The company's services cover the waters surrounding Galveston Island, including offshore fishing grounds, bay areas, and the harbor. Captain Shane oversees a team of captains and crew members, with the business identifying safety, hospitality, and professionalism as central operating priorities.

Customer reviews provide additional insight into the company's fishing experiences. Amanda Davis Lawhorn described a first fishing expedition with three teenagers, specifically noting Captain Shane and the crew's patience and willingness to answer questions. Sam Malone also shared a positive account of a fishing trip, while Chase Cormier referenced several catches during an offshore outing that included red snapper, kingfish, shark, Spanish mackerel, and bull redfish. These individual accounts reflect customer experiences rather than guarantees of specific catches or wildlife encounters.

For those considering an evening outing, the sunset cruise provides a defined one-hour experience with a published starting price of $225 for groups of up to six passengers. Booking information and details about the company's other excursions are available through its website.
