Siam Legal International Releases Thailand Privilege Visa Affixation Guide

November 11, 2026

Bangkok, Thailand - November 11, 2026 -
Siam Legal International, a full-service law firm with more than 22 years of experience assisting Thai and foreign clients, has released a new episode of its Ask Rex series focused on the final step of the Thailand Privilege Visa application: having the visa sticker affixed to the passport. The episode, featuring the firm's Thai visa specialist Darwin, sets out how the process works for members inside Thailand and for those arriving from abroad.

The Ask Rex series draws on questions raised repeatedly by clients across thousands of consultations. With Thailand?s visa rules changing frequently, the series focuses on guidance grounded in real cases rather than general information. Visa affixation is among the most common questions, as it is the step members most want to complete correctly on their first entry under the program, formerly known as the Thailand Elite Visa.

?It is the moment the entire application comes together, and it is also the step where small gaps in paperwork can cause unnecessary delays,? said Rex Baay, Senior Immigration Consultant and Operations Manager at Siam Legal International. ?Members who choose the right route for their location, give the required notice, and arrive with their supporting documents in hand generally find the process straightforward, whether it takes place at an immigration office in Bangkok or at the airport.?

The process begins once a member has received the welcome letter. Siam Legal then coordinates with Thailand Privilege Member Service to arrange the visa affixation, with the route depending on where the member is when the letter arrives.

Members who receive the welcome letter while already in Thailand may have the visa affixed at the Chaeng Watthana immigration office in Bangkok. Booking the appointment requires the member's TM30, latest entry stamp, and a Thai phone number, and the appointment requires one week of advance notice.

Members who are abroad may instead have the visa sticker affixed on arrival at the airport. Flight details are needed three to five business days in advance so that the appointment and Elite Personal Assistant services can be booked on the member's behalf.

On landing, an Elite Personal Assistant meets the member at the arrival gate and provides an escort through immigration, where the Thailand Privilege Visa is affixed to the passport. The process is designed to be smooth, though immigration officers may request supporting documents at their discretion.

Preparing those documents in advance helps avoid delays at the counter. Printed bank statements from any savings account in the member's name are recommended, and members currently employed overseas may find it helpful to carry an employment contract or related documents.

Additional paperwork can be relevant depending on personal circumstances. Members whose country of birth differs from their passport nationality are advised to keep a birth certificate available in case immigration asks about it, and members who have naturalized or renounced another nationality should bring the relevant documents.

The full walkthrough, including the airport arrival process and the documents immigration may request, is available in Siam Legal's Thailand Privilege sticker guide, part of the Ask Rex series. Siam Legal International is an official General Sales and Services Agent for the Thailand Privilege Visa program.
