

Sasso Guerrero & Henderlite Expands Online Access to Tampa Family Law Office Information

November 17, 2026

JACKSONVILLE, FL - November 17, 2026 -
Sasso Guerrero & Henderlite has highlighted the resources available through its dedicated Tampa website, offering area families a central place to find office location details, contact information, and an overview of the firm's family law services. The update builds on Sasso Guerrero & Henderlite's Tampa family law expansion announcement by focusing on how accessible information can help residents understand their legal options.

The website brings together practical details for individuals and families researching legal assistance in the region. Visitors can review Tampa contact information, locate the office, and explore descriptions of the family law matters the firm handles. The resource is intended to serve as a starting point for people navigating significant changes in their family circumstances.

Several core service areas are represented on the site, including divorce, parenting plans, timesharing, child support, and modifications of existing orders. By reviewing these overviews, individuals can identify which services may apply to their situation, prepare initial questions, and contact the office with a clearer sense of their circumstances. The firm notes that general information presented online is educational and does not substitute for individualized legal advice.

Jay Henderlite, a representative of the firm, addressed the value of making office information readily available to those researching family law support.

"People facing family law matters often begin by looking for reliable information before they ever speak with an attorney," Henderlite said. "The Tampa website is designed to make it straightforward to find where the office is located, understand the services available, and arrive at a first conversation feeling more prepared."

Henderlite added that the firm intends to continue developing Tampa-focused material over time. "Clear and accessible office information helps families take that initial step with less uncertainty," he said. "The goal is to give the Tampa community a dependable place to learn how Florida family law applies to their lives."

The Tampa office addresses a broad range of family law matters. Beyond divorce, parenting plans, timesharing, child support, and modifications, the firm also handles paternity, adoption, mediation, and marital agreements. Each service overview on the website explains the general legal processes involved, helping readers understand what to expect and which topics may be relevant to their own needs.

The firm emphasized that the website reflects existing office information rather than any change in operations, and encourages residents to confirm current details directly with the Tampa office when planning their next steps.

Sasso Guerrero & Henderlite is a Florida law firm focused on family law and criminal law, with its main office based in Jacksonville. The firm's managing partners hold Board Certification in Marital and Family Law, reflecting a concentration of experience in the field. Its Tampa presence extends that focus to a growing region, serving individuals and families across the area with services that include divorce, child custody and support, paternity, adoption, mediation, and marital agreements. Through its Tampa website and ongoing resource development, the firm continues working to broaden access to family law information throughout Florida.
