Mountaintop Web Design Launches New Website for MJS Landscaping

November 12, 2026

GREENWOOD VILLAGE, CO - November 12, 2026 -
Mountaintop Web Design, a website design and digital marketing agency, has launched a new website for MJS Landscaping Services, a commercial and residential landscaping company headquartered in Waukesha, Wisconsin. The site went live on August 21, 2026 and presents the company's landscape management, snow and ice, and design and build services in one place.

MJS Landscaping Services was founded in 1997 and provides landscape management, snow removal, and landscape design and build work. Its commercial clients include corporate campuses, utilities, and municipalities across southern Wisconsin, and its maintenance work covers sites ranging from 10,000 square feet to properties of about 45 acres. In March 2025, MJS was acquired by Beary Landscaping, which said at the time that it planned to keep the MJS staff and brand in place.

The new website was organized around the two sides of the MJS business. Commercial property owners and managers can review year-round grounds management, irrigation, and snow and ice services, while homeowners planning outdoor living projects can explore residential design and construction work such as patios, walkways, retaining walls, and outdoor living spaces.

The residential section outlines the design and build process in order, starting with a project vision call and an on-site consultation, followed by design development, installation, and a final walk-through. It also explains how MJS uses 3D animation to show clients a planned landscape before construction begins. A consultation form asks visitors whether their inquiry concerns commercial maintenance or a design and build project, which can help direct each request to the right part of the MJS team.

Mountaintop worked with the MJS team through content and design reviews over the course of the project. Page titles and service descriptions were revised to match the terms MJS uses with its own clients, including describing its commercial maintenance work as landscape management. According to MJS, the agency explained the reasoning behind its recommendations as the work progressed and planned reviews around the landscaping company's busy schedule.

Greg Barnette, Business Development Manager at MJS Landscaping Services, said the team's approach was what stood out during the project. "Their meticulous attention to detail, high level of professionalism, and personalized approach truly set them apart. What we appreciated most was their educational and collaborative style. They didn't just execute changes but patiently explained the 'why' behind their actions. They were also remarkably flexible with our demanding schedule and kept everything exceptionally organized."

The MJS project adds to Mountaintop's recent website work for service-based businesses. Earlier projects announced by the agency include a website for Golden Constructors, a commercial construction company, and a redesign for Ciao Darcy, a personalized Italian travel planning service, announced in April 2026. In 2025, the agency also announced a mission-driven travel platform for WildHer Expeditions in March and a refreshed website for luxury travel company Blue World Journeys in July.

Mountaintop Web Design was founded in November 2013 by Josiah Bussing and is based in Greenwood Village, Colorado. The agency provides strategy development, website design, content support, ongoing website management, and digital marketing services, along with search engine optimization and branding for small and mid-sized businesses. It works with organizations in fields that include professional services, healthcare, cybersecurity, engineering, and nonprofits, and reports more than 120 clients nationwide.

The new MJS website is available at MJS Landscaping Services. More information about the agency's website design services is available at Mountaintop Web Design.
