

A&M Roofing Highlights Perfect Customer Rating Across Flat Roofing and Repair Services

November 17, 2026

MCLEAN, VA - November 17, 2026 -
A&M Roofing, a licensed roofing contractor serving the Northern Virginia community for more than twenty years, has maintained a perfect five-star customer rating based on 33 verified reviews. The milestone reflects consistent feedback from residential and commercial property owners who have cited the company's communication, workmanship, and service across a range of roofing projects.

The company reports that every review it has received to date carries a five-star score, with customers noting quick work, competitive pricing, and attentive customer service. Among the recent feedback is a five-star review available through the company's public listing at amroofingva.com, which documents a property owner's experience with a completed roofing project.

"The rating reflects the standards each technician brings to every project, regardless of size," said Mark Collins of A&M Roofing. "Consistency in workmanship and communication has been the focus since the company began serving Northern Virginia property owners, and the feedback shows that approach resonates with the community."

A&M Roofing services include new roof installation, complete roof replacement, and routine maintenance. The company also performs Roof Repair for structures damaged by storms, fallen trees, or ordinary wear over time. For property owners considering alternatives to traditional shingle systems, the company installs metal panel roofs, which are selected for durability and long-term performance in the regional climate.

In addition to full roofing services, the company works on gutters, siding, windows, and doors. A&M Roofing employs a HAAG-certified technician to assess roof conditions and identify potential problem areas before they develop into larger concerns. The company recently completed a weatherproofing project in Lorton, Virginia, that involved the installation of a high-performance synthetic underlayment for moisture protection and extended durability.

The company notes that roof replacement is typically necessary every fifteen to twenty years depending on the materials used, and that routine maintenance can extend the service life of an existing roof. Its technicians carry the certifications and insurance required to perform the services offered.

"Flat roofing and panel systems each present distinct maintenance needs, and part of the work involves helping property owners understand which option suits their structure," Collins added. "The goal is to provide accurate assessments and durable results that hold up over the years."

A&M Roofing also provides financing options through a partnership with Service Finance Company, LLC, giving property owners additional flexibility when planning larger projects such as full replacements or structural repairs.

A&M Roofing is a McLean-based roofing company that serves residential and commercial property owners throughout Northern Virginia. The licensed company offers roof repair, replacement, maintenance, and installation, along with gutter, siding, window, and door services. With more than two decades of experience, HAAG-certified technicians, and a focus on quality materials, A&M Roofing continues to serve the regional community across a full spectrum of roofing needs.
