June 30, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Houston, Texas based 1SourceSEO.com has announced a new look and a new brand as it changed its website to SEOSHouston.com. The company is now SEOs Houston and it is offering a new range of services fitting with their new name. Robert Ferguson with SEOs Houston says, "Our goal has always been to be the best in SEO, and we felt that this major change is in keeping with meeting that goal."

Ferguson states that the company has expanded its offerings for Houston SEO, and that they offer experts to help businesses see a much greater return on their online marketing investments. He says that most businesses, while they have somewhat of an online presence, do not use search engine optimization effectively, which could be their downfall.

"Our goal is to offer Houston search engine optimization so that businesses can worry about other things. I mean, there are a million things to consider when running a business. How well your website is doing shouldn't affect other tasks."

Ferguson says that those looking for an SEO expert in Houston TX should contact them. He states that while they have changed their name and rebranded their services, they are still the most experienced in the region and can offer expert guidance to business owners on the best ways to get their companies noticed.

The company has been providing SEO services for local and national companies for several years. Ferguson says that the rebranding is not something completely out of the blue. He states that they have been working on the name change and the new look for quite some time, feeling that now was the best time to continue forward with the changes.

"We just want people to know that our services are still of the highest caliber and that we can still help them to really put their names out there online, so that they can garner better results from their websites."

Those interested in learning more about what the Houston SEO company does, or who would like to consult with Ferguson and his team on search engine optimization strategies, can visit them on their official website.
