August 02, 2016

August 02, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Mike Marko, with Internet Marketing Consulting Services in Cincinnati, Ohio, has recently updated his review of the iMarketsLive system. Mike states that there are a number of people currently having success with this platform and as part of his mission to help inform people of the various business opportunities available, he continues to review different products and give his best evaluation of results.

"I have recommended a different program now that offers a $1 trial vs iMarketsLive," Mike says. "It's a lot easier for those looking to start a business online".

Mike continues to focus on helping businesses promote their business online in addition to reviewing business opportunities that come available. Marko's iMarketsLive review covers the general concept of the business and the flaw that he noticed with people marketing it. He explains that he does not support the method used by many where they try to use social media like Facebook in their effort to get leads. He points out that a blog should be used and that this should be independent from anything that they are promoting.

In the review, Mike does not waste time talking about the price points for the said business opportunity, what comes with it, and how to become distributor. Instead, he examines the the overall concept that the people using the system are following, and provides his honest opinion about the system. He declares that he is not an affiliate and that the review that he has done is only based on research and what he believes should be done to attain success with the system.

"International Markets Live requires nothing but an affiliate membership to sell within the opportunity," Mike says. "The compensation plan is based on the sale of memberships."

Mike and his team are expert online marketers that offer insights to others on various systems that they can use to achieve success in online marketing. He says that all of the reviews he offers are based on unbiased opinion and only offered after he has thoroughly checked out each system or platform. Those interested in learning more about iMarketsLive or any of the other systems that Mike has reviewed can see a complete list on his official website.
