Landscape Pros Jupiter, a family owned and operated business in Florida that has been established for more than 25 years, has recently announced the launch of several new services in landscape design. William Vargas of Landscape Pros Jupiter states, "We are pleased to introduce our new services to customers in Jupiter, Florida, which include water components, water gardens, lighting and erosion command systems."

Vargas states that these latest services will round out the landscaping company's offerings, providing a range of selections for both residential and commercial customers. More about the range of services that Landscape Pros is offering can be seen at <http://www.landscapeprosjupiter.com>.

"Our residential services have always been popular," adds William Vargas. "Now that we've added erosion control and water gardens, we expect this division to skyrocket."

Vargas explains that water gardens and outdoor lighting services will allow customers to enhance the look of their outdoor living spaces, going so far as to increase their overall property value. Outdoor water features and landscaping design can help to raise property values by those who are looking to sell or who want to obtain refinancing or a second mortgage loan.

Landscaping Pros Jupiter provides commercial services as well, and Vargas states that these new services will be offered to both homes and offices. Commercial clients who want to add landscaping design by way of a water garden or lighting can contact the company for an initial quote, where a list of options and design preferences can be discussed. The company provides a full design plan for landscaping services, and Vargas states that this will include the new service offerings.

The design plan will feature the preparation work as well as the design, hardscape strategy, and other aspects that are often considered when landscaping. Vargas states that residential and commercial clients can now contact the company to inquire about their erosion command systems, or any of the new water or landscaping design features that they are now offering, to schedule an initial consultation. More about the company and their complete list of services can be seen on their official website.
