August 03, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Total Training, a leader in online software training, has announced a massive expansion of their online training library.

"We've recently added almost 100 new titles to our library," explained company founder Brian Maffitt, "with the goal to increase our customers' confidence and competency with today's most important software tools."

The new titles can be broken down into three expanded course categories: Productivity, Design, and Software Development. The Productivity category now includes a complete array of Microsoft® Office 2016 and Office 365® courses for Windows® and Mac® users. The Design category includes the Adobe® Creative Cloud® suite of products featuring Premiere® Pro, Audition®, Bridge®, and more. The Development category features WordPress® training and JavaScript® courses, among other topics.

"We offer courses a la carte, but most customers choose our affordable "All Access Pass," Maffitt says. "Our training is delivered by expert instructors who are also industry professionals. Now with over 325 courses in the library we have topics tailored from beginners to expert, with the goal of improving our customers? skills as quickly and thoroughly as possible."

Total Training customers get automatic access to project files--at no extra cost--which reinforce the concepts seen on screen. Streamlined online access lets customers learn whenever and wherever they like, working at their own pace. And as the library rapidly expands, subscribers receive all new content?again, at no additional charge.

Total Training customers learn essential, up-to-date skills that can provide an advantage over the competition, either at their current jobs or when job hunting. Total Training has been providing award-winning software training for 20 years, preparing consumers and professionals for the workplace and maximizing the value of their software investment.
