Pro Pad Inc. in Mooresville, North Carolina, which is a provider of various motorcycle accessories, has recently launched a Revolver Seat Mount Knob, which they state makes a great accent piece for any motorcycle. Mike Enzwiler, President of Pro Pad, says, "This is a decorative piece that can add a lot of character to a motorcycle. It replaces the Phillips head screw for your seat tang, and looks like a revolver chamber."

More information about the seat mount knob can be found at Pro Pad's website at <http://www.thepropad.com/revolver-seat-mount-knob/>. The company states that it fits a .22 casing and is solid stainless steel with a 1/4-20 thread. It's available in polished stainless as well as brushed or black coated stainless, and comes with a rubber washing and six optional casings, which must be glued in to prevent them from vibrating out. Enzwiler says that a small drop of silicone or super glue will keep the casings in place.

"Of course, all of our accessory products are 100 percent made in the United States of America," Enzwiler adds. "We wouldn't have it any other way."

Pro Pad is a family owned and operated manufacturing company, providing a number of parts and accessories for motorcycles. Their most popular products to date are seat pads and gel seat inserts, designed to make long rides more comfortable. Enzwiler states that the company's goal is to offer superior customer service along with the best products on the market for riders. The new seat mount design meets those standards well according to the company, and helps riders to make quite a statement about how they support American rights.

Pro Pad began years ago by offering only seat pads, and has since added several accessories and products to their line. Their flag mounts have become very popular and like the seat mount knobs, allow riders to customize their motorcycles with products that are in line with their own views and beliefs.

Riders looking to add some unique elements to their motorcycles can visit Pro Pad Inc. on their official website to learn more about the company and browse the complete list of products that they offer.
