For individuals with significant substance abuse-related disorders getting into and honestly working a proven program can be the start of a whole new, productive and happy life. New Jersey-based Behavioral Crossroads recently celebrated the success of their Crossroads Recovery Services in this important area, through their various Outpatient programs.

July 16, 2016 - Experts agree that recovering from a substance abuse disorder can certainly be one of life's great challenges. Fortunately, with the right help and guidance recovery can come in a much simpler and direct way. New Jersey-based Behavioral Crossroads have been seeing great success with their Crossroads Recovery Services, in fulfilling their mission of helping people with substance abuse issues develop the skills they need to live, learn or work in the community of their choice, with minimal intervention from the substance abuse treatment community. A number of different programs are offered to best meet the needs of the individuals who come to Crossroads for help and guidance.

“Crossroads Recovery is one of the leading New Jersey mental health centers offering outpatient services for addiction for adults,” commented a spokesperson from the center. “By working to help build the strengths of the individuals who come to us for treatment and through our programs and the community surrounding them, we are often successful in helping prevent the need for in-patient substance abuse hospitalization.”

According to Crossroads, their main Substance Abuse and Recovery programs include: General Outpatient (GOP), Intensive Outpatient (IOP), Outpatient Detox (WM - Withdrawal Management), Partial Care Programs, Mental Health Programs and Sober Living options. Common insurance policies, like Medicaid and many, many others can cover the programs as long as criteria are met, something which Crossroads are always happy to discuss with individuals in need or their families and loved ones.

Feedback from people who are in or have passed through Crossroads Recovery has been overwhelmingly positive.

A person attending Crossroads General Outpatient program recently said, "Crossroads is teaching me the tools to help me in my recovery. I'm so grateful on a daily basis for everything that they do here."
