August 01, 2016

August 01, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Chris Walker, an established search engine optimization (SEO) expert, has recently launched a Meetup for Denver residents interested in learning more about SEO and what it can do for their businesses. Chris has been working in the SEO field for more than ten years, and is recognized for his small to mid-sized business system, which provides access to increased web traffic and growth in sales. He has made it clear that the aim of the Meetup is to offer opportunities to businesses requiring help in establishing regular revenue streams by implementing online marketing strategies.

Information on Mr. Walker and his business can be found online at <https://thesearchengineoptimizationexpert.com/denver-seo/>. Here, potential clients can read more about Chris, learn about SEO vs. other marketing practices, and better understand how to choose an SEO expert that will work for them. Chris writes: "SEO is not one-size-fits-all. You need to be sure to choose a firm that understands your business. Your unique goals will impact the direction, scope and aggressiveness of your optimization. If you don't feel that a firm is listening to you or being clear about the strategies, then it's best to choose another professional."

The Meetup initiative can be found online at <http://www.meetup.com/seo-denver/>. Unlike Chris' official website, the Meetup site provides information specifically regarding the new program for Denver residents. It offers access to members, photos, group discussions, and more. Those who take part in the group will also have access to data on actual meetups where the group gets together to discuss SEO and its advantages. The Meetup page explains: "This meetup will provide you with all of the tools and knowledge you will ever need to run an amazingly dominant SEO campaign. This is the real deal. No fluff, just facts about SEO from past experience. Come meet up with like minded successful individuals and meet one of the industries most successful search engine optimization experts while you're at it. Welcome to the SEO Denver Meetup Group."

To get in contact with Chris Walker, or the Meetup group, contact information is available through both online resources. The Meetup.com site has been designed to accommodate new users, allowing businesses and individuals to connect directly from Facebook or other social media tools.
