August 26, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Buy to let investments purchased through limited companies are becoming more popular, not in the least because of their potential tax advantages. Lemon Tree Financial, a company in Harrow, Middlesex, United Kingdom, has therefore released new information on buy to let limited company investments. Company Buy To Lets are already proving to be very popular as more Landlords are anticipating a fall in their profits following the tax changes announced by Chancellor George Osborne.

Mitul from Lemon Tree Financial says: "We have the expertise and resources to offer a range of different services to our clients, in particular providing them with advice on Buy To Let ownership within a Limited Company or on personal BTL basis."

Lemon Tree Financial have a wealth of experience in various Buy To Let solutions and work closely with the clients accountant to tailor a Buy To Let Product tailored to their chosen structure.

The company has always prided itself on delivering the highest quality service and most suitable advice. This is something that has set them in good standing with their many clients. "Exceptional service provided for many years, clear and concise with complicated information," says Priya V. on Thomson Local. "Communication was brilliant and very attentive with my needs. Gave excellent advice, would thoroughly recommend to anyone looking for a Financial Advisor."

Lemon Tree Financial Harrow suggest people looking into buy to let investments via a Limited Company structure to contact them for professional advice. "We are there to help our clients not only to find the best way to fund their Buy to Let Portfolios, but the best ways to afford them as well," adds Mitul. Middlesex is known for its high property prices, which means it is difficult for many first time buyers to get on the property ladder. On the other hand, this has opened a huge market for buy to let investors.
