

Owner Of Elmhurst IL Local Maid Service Company Interviewed On YouTube

August 08, 2016

August 08, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Helping Hands Maid Services, an office cleaning services company in Elmhurst, IL, takes the responsibility of keeping offices and other places clean very seriously, and their owner, Gosia Baran, has recently been interviewed on YouTube to highlight the importance of having quality employees, offering excellent training, and delivering top rated customer service. The company believes that cleaners are the hidden, unsung heroes of society as they work diligently through the night to ensure offices and homes alike are kept spotlessly clean, something that many people don't think about.

Gosia Baran herself says: "When people visit businesses and other commercial institutions, they expect them to be clean. This is for the benefit not just of clients, but also the personnel, who have a right to work in safe, hygienic conditions. Our company helps to achieve that, and we are committed to hiring only the highest quality staff and investing in them through training. Furthermore, we deliver excellent customer service across the board. We encourage everyone to contact us for further information."

As a local maid service, the company has set itself apart by delivering personalized solutions for all their clients. They offer these services both in the home and in offices. Services include bathroom sanitation, vacuuming floors, mopping and scrubbing, trash removal, dusting, organizing and straightening lobbies, and anything else their clients may have a need for. They offer a free quote form on their website and Facebook page, so people can find out the services that are most suitable for them.

Those who have already used the services of Helping Hands have been highly positive about their experiences. "Very knowledgeable and can answer any of your concerns," says Diane D.D. on their Facebook page. "Keeps up with the latest technology and training. Don't hesitate to hire them, you won't be disappointed in them. They also give back to the community in many ways."

During the customer focused cleaning company interview, which has already received many hits on YouTube, Gosia Baran explains how she believes in investing in her staff and in the community. She fully highlights the vision and mission of the company, and it is easy to see just why they have become so popular.
