According to the New Yorker's SPF guide, sun protection is no joke. While this was presented in a humorous article, the serious nature of the content was quite clear. A company in Vancouver, Washington, Tisha's Choices, has taken this very seriously and, committed to improving travel and summer enjoyment for all their customers, have released a line of wide brimmed hats to help people enjoy the sun safely.

Jillian Gregg, spokesperson for Tisha's Choices, says: "Sun protection is something we all need to get serious about. You should wear a hat with a wide brim and cover yourself with SPF 50 at least so that you are properly protected. I'm happy to announce that we now carry a line of beautiful sun hats to help facilitate this."

The hats are currently available exclusive on Amazon, as part of the Tisha's Choices store. They have released the packable wide brim beach hats that come with a beach bag organizer tote. They are available in Natural & Gold, Navy & Navy, or White with Navy Trim. Additionally, they are one size fits most, so that everybody should be able to wear them.

Those who have tried the set have been very pleased about the product. They love the fact that it is one size fits most and actually fits comfortably, and also about the fact that the product is so fashionable and multifunctional. The tote bag, which can easily hold the hat, can also be used for various other functions, such as days out at the beach or lunches at the harbor.

Tisha's Choices is committed to delivering nice products that enable people to travel easily, comfortably, and in style. They have created a number of products to facilitate that, such as TSA compliant travel sets, and more. All of their products are available on Amazon, offering greater security and convenience for clients.

"We want to make sure that people can enjoy their travels, and do so safely," adds Jillian Gregg. "At the same time, we want to make sure people look good. Our hat set truly embodies this and we're happy to see it is already so popular."
