August 10, 2016

August 10, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

A Voorhees Township, New Jersey, law firm has announced that they will be presenting a continuing legal education course for area attorneys. Firm partners Douglas A. Fendrick, Esquire, and Jamie Shuster Morgan, Esquire, of Fendrick & Morgan LLC, are presenting a New Jersey Institute of Continuing Legal Education course titled "Estate Planning Considerations for Children." The course is set to take place on August 19, 2016.

The firm has revealed that they will prepare and deliver this new course, which is designed to provide new information to those who work in estate planning. The course will focus on estate planning for parents while considering the needs of their children and the different legalities that have to taken care of when children are present.

Douglas A. Fendrick notes, "Estate planning for parents raises a host of considerations which must be addressed in the planning process. At Fendrick & Morgan, we focus on the family and crafting a plan to best suit the family's needs and the parent's objectives. For example, often care must be taken to protect assets in the case of a divorce or a child struggling with creditor issues."

When getting the services of an estate planning lawyer New Jersey residents can obtain help with regards to issues about estate planning, elder law, and estate administration. They work with clients to create a customized plan that works well for each individual need. The firm believes that every client has individual objectives and their goal is to ensure that those needs are met. In addition, the firm wants to emphasize that estate planning ensures that assets are preserved for the children and other heirs.

Atty. Fendrick says that when children are involved, estate planning can be a bit more complicated and in order to fully serve clients' needs, all attorneys must understand these unique objectives. The course offered will provide attorneys with the continuing education requirements that must be met annually in order to ensure compliance with legal rules and regulations.

The firm states that there are still available seats for the course and that those interested can contact them through their official website for more information.
