

Onward Nation Ep. 300 with Carrie Hartunian Smith

August 18, 2016

August 18, 2016 -
Carrie Hartunian Smith, of Smart Marketing Consulting recently joined Stephen Woessner, host of Onward Nation Podcast to celebrate their 300th Episode and to discuss time saving techniques, critical skills and daily habits that contribute to business owners success. The complete interview is available on the Onward Nation website.

Carrie Hartunian Smith co-founded Smart Marketing Consulting, a business in Cave Creek, AZ, with one goal in mind, to work with business owners and entrepreneurs, to close the gap between where they are and where they want to be in business.

Carrie states: "I was so happy to be invited for an interview with Onward Nation. It is one of my personal favorite podcasts as I feel they release a wealth of important information for business owners and entrepreneurs alike. To be featured on the 300th episode was obviously extra special, and I really feel honored to have been a part of it."

The Onward Nation podcast was developed by Stephen Woessner, who is CEO of Predictive ROI. He has identified eight money draining mistakes on people's websites, and he now helps others spot and fix them themselves. One way he achieves this is through the podcast, where he teaches people to increase their digital return on investment to something between 200% and 500%, in less than one year.

Carrie Hartunian Smith, meanwhile, left her corporate job back in 2012 with the purpose of making a difference in organizations on the growth path. "Smart Marketing Consulting takes the 'classic tried and true' business practices and incorporates 21st century online (and offline) proven techniques to create a thriving scalable, repeatable and profitable business, whether you have a product or service (or both in some cases)," she adds. Smart Marketing Consulting achieves these results in ways that are individualized and personalized for her clients. More information about the services offered by Carrie can be viewed by visiting the Smart Marketing Consulting website.

In the 300th episode of the Onward Nation podcast, which is also available on iTunes, Carrie Hartunian Smith discussed how she went from generating $60K per month to finishing with $7 million in the first year of a startup media company back in 1993-94 . She goes into detail about her various ventures and adventures, and how these have helped to shape who she is. She has found passion in what she does, and this is something she passionately shares with others, thereby ensuring they build an organization around their lifestyle and continue doing what they enjoy most.
