Burlingame, California based company Wanderlust, has announced the release of a new product, which are compression socks for pregnant women. The company recently launched the maternity compression stockings onto the Amazon marketplace. These are designed to aid in resolving some of the common leg and feet issues that are associated with pregnancy.

A spokesperson for the company states, "Swollen legs and ankles are just a normal part of pregnancy for many women, unfortunately. We've designed these socks to help alleviate the swelling that many women experience, and therefore eliminate pain."

Researchers at the Mayo Clinic have stated that the body retains more fluids during pregnancy, which can cause swelling in the lower extremities. Along with this, a growing uterus can put pressure on veins which can slow down the return of blood to the heart. This can also lead to swelling in the feet and legs.

The Wanderlust compression socks are designed to help with blood circulation, therefore alleviating much of the swelling that pregnant women experience. The socks are made from nylon and provide medical grade graduated compression to provide relief for women during their pregnancy.

"Pregnancy should be a happy time," says the company spokesperson. "You shouldn't be concerned about swollen ankles and discomfort in your legs. We wanted to help pregnant women to be able to enjoy this precious time without worries of swelling and pain."

The maternity compression socks are backed by Wanderlust's satisfaction guarantee and the company states that they are perfectly designed to fit women throughout all stages of pregnancy. They have a special weave design and heel compartment to prevent bunching and rolling down, and an open toe design to support all foot sizes.

The company states that they studied pregnancy throughout various stages in order to provide women with a compression stocking that will help to eliminate pain and swelling. The stockings offer arch support that can also help to prevent plantar fasciitis, a common occurrence in runners and those who spend a lot of time on their feet.

More about the compression socks can be seen on the company's official Amazon seller's page, where a list of other items is also available.
