Mordedura de Perro can be a trying time for people, as most don't expect to be bitten by a dog. Being bitten by a dog can cause both physical and psychological trauma. In order to help with these situations, Mordedura de Perro Abogado Kevin Cortright has created a website for Spanish speakers so they can better understand how to navigate mordedura de Perro.

In California, there are specific laws in relation to mordedura de Perro. These laws make sure that the owner of the dog is liable for injuries that may have been caused to the victim. Whether the bite happens on public or private (under legal circumstances) property, the owner is still considered responsible for the injuries. This is called "strict liability" and means that the dog does not even necessarily have to have bitten somebody before, be considered previously dangerous, or have negligent owners. However, even with these things on somebody's side, it is not easy to receive fair compensation for a mordedura de Perro. Compensation should include all damages including both physical and psychological, and it takes an experienced attorney to help receive this fair compensation.

A law office in Palm Springs, the Law Offices of Kevin Cortright, works to help those that have mordedura de Perro get the proper compensation for their injuries. Kevin Cortright and the staff in his office believe that when a dog bite is involved, there should always be proper compensation even if the victim does not know how to get it themselves.

If more information is needed, or if somebody would like to schedule a free consultation for mordedura de Perro, they can visit The Law Offices of Kevin Cortright?s full Spanish website at www.cortrightlaw.com/es. Kevin Cortright will sit down with any new client and help them understand their options and fight for them. Se habla espanol.
