August 24, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

With Facebook adding a great feature, Facebook Live, local Washington DC digital marketer launches new social media website.

As Facebook rolls out Facebook Live, local Washington DC digital marketer Sandra Jackson launches her new interactive Facebook Live website, a complete resource for local businesses in the Washington DC.

Aiming to provide local businesses with easy access to information about Facebook Live and their advertising platform, local Washington DC digital marketer Sandra Jackson announces the launch of <http://divavisionmedia.com>. The interactive site is a useful resource for local businesses interested in learning more about Facebook Live and Facebook's advertising platform.

The site's launch comes at an optimal time, what with the power of Facebook helping to build brands, audience awareness and the awesome feature of live video. "I hope local businesses and especially small businesses will find the site to be a handy guide to the best features and tips available," says Jackson. The site has been designed with a streamlined user interface and features wide variety of tips and tweaks on social media use and other resources.

"It's good that the site was launched just as the momentum of Facebook Live is gaining traction," says Jackson. "As a whole, local marketers in the Washington DC area will see heightened use of live video for the 4th quarter of this year, with all markets greatly improving their exposure and profits compared to this time last year."

The new site offers extensive information in one place so the local Washington DC business won't have to search all over the place for answers to their question. Visit DivaVision Media for more in-depth information on Facebook Live for local business marketing.
