Working with Houston Custom Pool Contractors, Roy Wingate Business Consultants, which is based in Odessa, TX, has completed a number of interesting pieces of work, including the launch of the pool contractor's new website. The contractor has asked Roy Wingate to take responsibility for their online marketing campaign, with a number of very specific instructions. In line with those instructions, Roy Wingate has revealed that a new Houston fence video has been published for the client. This video can be viewed at <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=w-EngTip5VY>.

Roy Wingate himself says: "Houston Custom Pool Contractors (<https://houstoncustompoolcontractors.com/>) is a company that does so much more than just build pools. They want to help people create the most beautiful outdoor spaces. These include such things as decking, outdoor kitchens, and fences. In our most recent piece of work for them, we have published a video that focuses specifically on the latter element."

For the contractor, the goal is to ensure people are empowered with all the knowledge and information they need in order to make the right decisions for their outdoor spaces. Since an exterior overhaul is often a significant investment, they believe people should take the time to learn more about their options and think about possibilities before actually hiring a contractor. This is clearly demonstrated in the video, which provides people with a number of key issues to think about.

"In the video, we discuss four things that people should look for in a fence contractor," adds Roy Wingate. "These are compatible style, references, professionalism, and specialization. Further details are provided about what to look for specifically within each of those categories. The contractor is a very professional and experienced company, and they encourage everyone to contact them for a free, no obligation quotation."

For Houston Custom Pool Contractors, the work Roy Wingate Business Consultants has done has been pivotal to the increasing success of their business. They have already been able to attract a wealth of new clients for a range of different outdoor projects. They have specifically noted that these new clients seem to be very well informed about what to look for, which is a direct result of the informative videos they have published through Wingate.
