The DUI Experts of Tulsa have recognized a Tulsa DUI attorney as being a go to expert that is proven to have both knowledge and experience when dealing with DUI charges.

When charged with a DUI one needs to deal with a criminal defense lawyer that specializes in DUI DWI cases.

A representative of the Tulsa DUI Experts goes on to cover a few things that should be done while finding an attorney.

"A DUI is a very serious matter, which is why you need an attorney specializing in DUI law. If you are not comfortable with an attorney or feel they are there for no other reason than to grab the fee and run, wait until you find a lawyer that you can trust. Do not be afraid to ask questions and don't stand for roundabout answers that don't really answer your questions."

In all states, an adult who drives with a blood alcohol content level of .08% or more is guilty of a DUI or DWI. There are DUI defenses related to breath, urine, blood, and saliva test. No probable cause to arrest or not providing Miranda warnings could exclude certain evidence at trial. Chemical testing machines need to be calibrated and maintained. A big part of prosecution's case could be thrown out with proof that an officer did not comply with state requirements.

"There are many factors that could ultimately affect the accuracy of test results. Eating food or taking medication prior to taking the test may result in a false reading. Think back to the night of your arrest. Did the officer have legal justification to stop your vehicle? Did you take medication or mouth wash?"

Lawyer costs will be all over the map. The cost should always be second. If someone is unable to afford an attorney the court will provide one for that person.
