Cammile Q Is Launching A New E-commerce Site

August 25, 2016

August 25, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Cammile Q is announcing the coming rollout of their new website, which will sell their line of products to the American people. The site will be launched in the middle of September via social media and emails to customers.

The new e-commerce site will give a clear overview for all customers and others of the many products available from Cammile Q. In addition to the already established products available, Cammile Q is planning to launch a new product shortly after the website launch, to celebrate the new site.

As part of the new launch, the new site will be promoted on Facebook and Twitter, and Cammile Q will be offering several great deals every day of the launch week. "We will be promoting the site on the social platforms to best reach out to our customers with the launch week deals," says Sarah Davis.

The goal is to offer a more personalized and accessible shopping experience for the customers. The end-user experience has been used as inspiration during the development of the site. The new e-commerce site allows shoppers to quickly and easily filter Cammile Q's products based on several different criteria. All visitors will now easily find the products and information they are looking for, accompanied by pictures and video of the products in use.

Sarah says: "We see that video is important for our customers. It helps them gather information about the products and their uses before they make a buying decision."

This will truly give the customers a great shopping experience. The fresh look of the site supports the brand and logo the customers are used to.

"We are grateful to be able to better interact and communicate with our customers," says Davis. "All of our test users love the look and feel of the new site, so we are looking forward to launching it to everyone later this month."
