The Johannesburg SEO Agency, a search engine optimization (SEO) and online reputation management company in Johannesburg, South Africa, has launched an extensive social media campaign to further highlight its services. This comes after the company was named the best SEO company in the area in a local community poll. The social media campaign, which includes a Facebook page and a YouTube channel, has gone off to a great start.

CEO Rocco Gagiano says: "As an SEO and reputation management company, we try to lead by example as much as possible. A lot of the work we do is manage the social media campaigns of our clients, which is why we decided to focus on our own, particularly after we were named best of our kind recently. We're happy to see that so many people are able to see the difference we can make by focusing on just two specific channels."

Since the company is known to be offering the best SEO services Johannesburg has to offer, its Facebook page and YouTube channel had already been launched some time ago. However, it is only recently that the platforms have been used more extensively, with the company regularly sharing news about the world of online marketing. This is in an effort to educate and inform the general public about updates and news in the world of search engine marketing.

Additionally, the Facebook page of the company is now available to allow people to leave their comments or reviews about the services offered by the company. The social media page indicates that the company is striving to be the best SEO company Johannesburg has to offer. Aside from Facebook, the company also has established its presence in YouTube, Twitter, LinkedIn, and Google Plus, as part of its social media campaign.

Besides search engine optimization, the SEO Johannesburg Agency also offers reputation management, social media marketing, video marketing and promotions, web design, website audit, and even malware and virus removal. In so doing, they are able to address any and all issues an online business has, or that a business has with their online presence overall. They encourage anyone to contact them for further information.
