Tisha's Choices, based in Vancouver, Washington, has announced the availability of the company's summer necessity kit that can be used for those who are planning to travel to sunny places during their winter getaway. The company has also recently stated that their beach sun hat and bag set will be on an end of season sale on the Amazon Marketplace until further notice.

Jillia Gregg, spokesperson for the company says, "Planning a trip to the sun or a winter get away? End of the season sale on hats and beach bags makes now the time to buy."

The company is offering a number of products on the Amazon.com site, including their summer necessity kit which includes a sun protection beach hat and a tote bag organizer. It has been determined that the hat blocks up to 85 percent of UV rays from the sun when combined with a UPF 50 sunscreen. It features a wide floppy brim and folds up neatly for storage in the beach bag tote.

"The tote is the best part," says Gregg. "It's big enough to hold everything you could possibly want or need to take along with you to the beach, and has long handles for more comfortable carrying. These are a great deal normally but with our end of the season sale, they're a must buy."

Gregg says that the beach set can also be useful during the winter months for those who are planning to travel to sunnier locations, like those listed on Conde Nast Traveler. She states that anyone planning a winter getaway will find the beach bag and hat set to be more than useful. Vollum says that at the currently listed price, travelers can afford to buy more than one set if needed.

Tisha's Choices offers a wide range of consumer products, most of which can be found on the Amazon marketplace. The company provides beach necessities as well as sanitizers and various other products that are designed to make traveling and staying at home easier. Vollum states that anyone interested in learning more about the company and the range of products that they offer can visit them on their official website or find them on the Amazon website.
