Escape Harassment offers valuable information and procedure about escape tickets, courts and the IRS. Escape Harassment is a volunteer group of educators and researchers. They started to research the common problem of oil shortage that is designed to increase the current gasoline price from forty-two cents for every gallon to $1.42 each gallon.

Before that, they existed as private business owners and they constantly got audited each year, since they had a huge yearly cash flow, but due to the never-ending rising of material pieces, Escape Harassment never made any taxable profit. Theft of the private property caused IRS computer to flag or kick out their members each year.

As time goes by, they started to get tired of being on the never-ending treadmill of Taxation and debts. This is the time when some of their members started researching the problems and begin to organize their report. In addition to this, Escape Harassment collates it into four main areas that individuals seem interested in. These became the different educational information packages and home-study courses offered by their sister group.

After that, there is a local research meeting that was designed for researchers in order for them to share the knowledge with one another. While the revenue collection increases, the physical meetings were transformed into weekly conference calls in order to accomplish the ultimate purpose without the costs and physical risks. The main sister website of Escape Harassment continued to provide four interest areas, mail order and research by hard-copy. But, the shipping or postage costs started to increase to improper levels and individuals were not reading or studying the research material.

The new students of Escape Harassment only want to know the best thing to do about the situation and problems. Students want quick fix answers that previous or earlier students had been successfully doing or using. Since the product that Escape Harassment offers is educational knowledge, it is not possible to return it. There are no refunds or returns via PayPal. To honest individuals and students, any recourse should be through the guarantee, upon consistent activation, implementation and completion of the three step procedure.
