Advanta Vita Launches Donation Program To Help People Achieve Better Health

October 13, 2016

October 13, 2016 -
Deerfield Beach, Florida based company AdvantaVita has announced the launch of a donation program with the goal of helping people have better health. The company states that their overall mission is to help individuals live longer and healthier lives, and declares that their donation program can help to make that happen.

Chris Johnson with AdvantaVita says, "We were founded from firsthand knowledge of health issues, and want to help others who are keen to improve their health. Our donation program is designed to help customers who may not be able to afford products that can help them to get healthy."

Johnson says that financial issues affect many consumers today, and the company wants to help offset the costs of healthier living, which is the reasoning behind the donation program. Details of the program can be seen at http://advantavita.com/donation/. Johnson states that the company has a limited budget available that allows them to provide customers with discounts, which allows those customers to purchase the supplements and vitamins they need when they would otherwise have some difficulty in doing so.

"It's all about giving to others," Johnson says. "That's something that we should all be doing, particularly if it can help people turn their life around and begin having a healthier lifestyle."

Johnson says that those who feel they may qualify for assistance can contact the company to inquire about an application. Those who feel they would like to help others get on the road to a wellness-focused lifestyle can now donate to the company through their official website or connect with them via their Facebook page at https://www.facebook.com/AdvantaVita.

Donations from the site are accepted through PayPal. The company says that a single donation of just $20 will help them to provide a consumer with one of their products completely free of charge. Johnson states that this allows them to offer products to a consumer who may otherwise be suffering from a deficiency in a vital vitamin or nutrient.
