May 08, 2017

May 08, 2017 -
Murrieta, California based company, Dealer Digital Group, has announced a new suite of search engine optimization (SEO) services for local businesses. The company is now providing these services using a number of different proven strategies.

Joel Miller with Dealer Digital Group says, "SEO is a very important part of any business that wants an online presence. If you don't utilize effective SEO strategies, the chance of your business being seen by potential customers is very low."

Miller states that the company provides a host of SEO related services from social media marketing to PPC management and more. He says that the company can help to increase organic search positions for companies, allowing them to move ahead of their competition on Google.

"Being on the first one or two pages for your particular keyword phrasing is essential," Miller states. "If you aren't on that first couple of pages, people aren't likely to see you at all."

Miller points out that studies have shown that most consumers rarely go past the third page of search results when looking for a particular product or service. He says that any business not listed on the first two to three pages is likely not to be seen by most consumers who may be searching for that type of business in the company's local area. He also states that getting on those first few pages is not difficult, provided the business works with a knowledgeable and experienced SEO company.

Dealer Digital Group uses a six-level SEO process that helps them to customize SEO campaigns to ensure that companies are gaining the most results for their efforts. The business is staffed with experienced SEO professionals who work to build the most relevant keyword phrases for businesses and use a number of additional strategies to provide the best results. Miller states that they can customize an SEO campaign for any business to help that business enjoy higher rankings and more website traffic.
