October 6, 2016; Boynton Beach, FL: Survivalist Magazine, a respected member of the emergency preparedness community and reputable leader in providing educational resources, proudly announces the launch of a new webinar titled Purify Any Water Source. As a concerned member of the prepper movement Survivalist Magazine and its staff strive to furnish the latest news in a timely fashion, especially if it is of a time sensitive nature.

?Here in Florida we have been told by the governor to evacuate at all costs as Hurricane Matthew is set to make landfall in the next couple of days,? states George Shepherd, CEO and founder of Survivalist Magazine and its parent company CDI Publications. ?It is natural disasters such as this that we prepare for. Even though we are in the middle of packing to evacuate, we felt it imperative to share this time sensitive webinar on purifying any water source.?

The emergency preparedness community is always expanding as natural disasters of this nature recur with increased frequency. In the modern era of technology this means that a vast majority of them prefer to consume their information through survival resources they can easily access online. By offering time sensitive material such as the Purify Any Water Source webinar, Survivalist Magazine appears primed to remain atop the industry ladder.

“If you're watching and you're in an evacuation area, get out,” Florida Governor Rick Scott said. “Don't take a chance. Time is running out. This is clearly going to either have a direct hit or come right along our coast and we're going to have hurricane-force winds. There are no excuses. You need to leave. Evacuate, evacuate, evacuate.”

“This category 4 hurricane could be one of the worst in US history,” warns Shepherd. “While we may be able to return to our homes by early next week, many of the goods and services will still be out of operation. For those returning before the lights and water are functional, this webinar will be of immense importance. Florida is full of wetlands and surrounded by saltwater, you may just need to know how to purify it in order to survive.”

Survivalist magazine, the most respected digital survival resource online, is available at Survivalist.com. All back issues are available along with survival guides, podcasts, workshops, DIY projects, webinars, blog posts and more.
