Many women in business postpone or give up on the dreams. According to the Center for Women's Business Research, there are 10.4 million firms in the United States and half of them are owned by women and more women open coaching and consulting businesses, offering their expertise.

Angela Giles, the founder of a brand new coaching platform for women in business, La Femme Marketing Academy, knows for sure that an entrepreneurial journey can be tough, and it takes determination and commitment to achieve success. Women tend to hesitate to make important moves toward expanding their profits and La Femme Marketing Academy training will give the exact blueprint to grow your business and create a lucrative future.

La Femme Marketing Academy provides solutions to the challenges that women face when starting a new business venture. It was designed with one purpose- to motivate and educate women on their entrepreneurial

La Femme Marketing Academy attracts a wide range of women: from young entrepreneurs, former corporate executives to working moms who want to quit their jobs to follow their passions. They come from different parts of the world and have one thing in common ? they have a passion for coaching and they are looking for the ways to turn their dream into the reality. They are looking for a support team to face challenges. They are looking for the ways to be heard, understood and known for good deeds

Angela Giles believes that every aspiring coach needs a coach to guide them through the process. They need a coach to launch their marketing and social media campaigns. They need a coach to show them a step by step guide of getting new clients and keeping them. La Femme Marketing Academy was born to help women go from struggling to thriving in their business and feel empowered, vibrant and happy every day of their life.

Angela Giles added, ?No one in the world can be successful without great people who believe in them. I am blessed to have met great mentors and have a circle of support consisting of amazing people. When we share our knowledge and experiences with other women, we improve their lives and their families wellbeing. We give them hope to own their business and have a sense of freedom.?

Mrs. Giles shared her story, ?My house was on fire, and I'd spent my last $69 on fliers for a business that went now where. As I stood there in my ripped underwear, firemen all around, I realized something needed to change and that I should have spent my last $69 on new underwear. I hired a nanny to help watch my kids (and my day care kids), dragged my ratty old desk and computer into the laundry room, where I spent 10 hours a day for the next four months learning everything I could about generating leads on online. I hit the jackpot when I learned to generate leads from EBay. Once I had mastered that, I wrote an eBook about all the ins and outs to generate leads for free, then sold it for $27."

That was step one on a marketing training journey that would lead to La Femme Marketing Academy and helping over 10,000 small business owners master the art of generating leads in the last 10 years.

Those who are inspired to build a successful business that gives them an opportunity to create freedom, give back to the community, use their talents and collaborate with other powerful women, La Femme Marketing Academy will help them achieve their goals.
