

BGA Insurance Group Adds More Medicare Seminars due to AmeriHealth Plan Drop in NJ

October 25, 2016

October 25, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

It was recently announced that the AmeriHealth 65 HMO plan would be dropped in 2017 for seniors in New Jersey. This means that many seniors that were enrolled in this plan will be enrolled in Original Medicare come January 1st, 2017 if they do not elect a new plan before the end of the Annual Enrollment period.

This can be a problem as many seniors will lose specific coverage for prescription drugs among other lost benefits.

In order to help seniors navigate this process, BGA Insurance Group in Pennsauken, New Jersey, has added additional Medicare seminars to their current schedule. These meetings are designed to help seniors understand the Medicare Enrollment process at no cost or obligation.

Seniors that are interested in attending a seminar can visit the seminar sign up page.

The announcement was officially made earlier this month on the BGA Insurance Group website.

This news can lead to a potential health insurance crisis as the elderly can be left with a suboptimal insurance plan that does not fit their current needs. The final date to enroll in a new plan is December 7th, 2016.

Additional seminar events are planned for the following dates and times:

Nov. 2nd ? Burlington Center Mall ? 10 am, 2 pm

Seniors that are worried about their loss of coverage should contact BGA Insurance Group for a free, no obligation review of their current insurance plan. Recommendations can then be made as to what health plan might make the most sense given health and retirement status.
