McKenzie & Willis offers a constantly evolving business model that serves home-owners throughout New Zealand well. The new face on the website is fresh, user-friendly and comprehensive.

Christchurch NZ: McKenzie & Willis is pleased to announce that their 110-year business age has not slowed them down in finding and offering the latest contemporary designs from professional designers around the globe. In addition to their several branch retail outlets throughout New Zealand, the company has an online catalogue and outlet where everything from bedroom furniture to bedding is available. For home-owners who are looking for a change in design, the experts at the store will be happy to schedule an in-home consultation free of charge.

Larger pieces such as those in a bedroom or living room can be chosen from the extensive selection. In addition, the accessories can be added to the user-friendly catalogue, featuring filters by type of furniture, brand, price ranges and other personal choices. In the bedroom, most customers think first of the bed, but there are other pieces which add to the appearance, comfort and functionality of the room. Headboards are one type of furnishing. There is also a range of slimboys, highboys, lowboys and chests. Customers may want to add bedside tables or lamps to complete the room's furnishings.

Duvet inners are designed to stay warm on cold winter nights. The selection available at McW includes goose-down in attractive and effective choices.

In the living room, sofas are typically the first item of furniture to be selected, with the chairs and accessories added to the major piece in order to complete the overall appearance and design of the room. The inventory of McW for the living room includes pieces which are for cozy seating for two or three people, to large sectional or modular designs which can create seating arrangements for a roomful of people. The designs include those which have arms and those which do not. Some pieces sit flush with the floor, while others have a higher profile.
