McKenzie & Willis offers continuous efforts to improve retail environments to increase product range and services. Customers are provided with exceptional access to home furnishings and décor choices.

Christchurch NZ: McKenzie & Willis is pleased to announce that the no-obligation and no-cost consultation services will provide customers with assistance in choosing everything from comforters to sofas. The customer may schedule a meeting in the home, or at one of the retail outlets to obtain assistance in making design and décor choices throughout the home. While the various pieces which are available are more likely to be found in one room rather than another, creating a uniform style in the home gives a sense of intent.

The 2016 website updates provide a user-friendly browsing or searching experience. Individual products can be seen as part of a larger category. Customers can also filter their browsing by choosing to view by price, brand name or other selection methods. Using the filters allows for browsing with a purpose. This reduces the time and effort spent in searching for home decorating specific items.

A wide variety of bedroom accessories can be seen by selecting the appropriate category. The company states that the choice of a comfortable Bianca Lorene housecoat is the epitome of luxury and style and all things beautiful. Each garment is hand-crafted within a refined colour palette and embellished with exquisite adornments to create a couture range of bed linen. The items in this category also include cushions and bedding pieces.

Among other bathroom accessories, there are packages of three knitted cloths made from 100% soft cotton. Perfect for using in the kitchen, as a face cloth or for babies. The colours are available in Duck Egg, Grey, Ochre, Petal, and Taupe. The cloths measure 27cm x 27cm. There are also packages of waffle weave tea towels in ten different colours. The colours can be selected to harmonise with the towels and wash-cloths which are available in absorbent fibres and high-quality design. Each product is designed to give exceptional wear and service.
