Hautbauer is proud to announce the second anniversary of their brand. Over the past two years, the company has served thousands of customers with their flagship product called "3+3 Formula Stretch Mark Cream", available on Amazon, which proved to be especially popular with pregnant women. The product contains Mother Nature's own ingredients, including olive oil, shea butter, jojoba oil, and more.

Suzy Holmes from Hautbauer says: "It has been an amazing two years in which we have been able to achieve our vision of delivering only the highest quality beauty products, using natural ingredients. We can't thank our customers enough for their continued trust and support, and we look forward to many more years in business."

The 3+3 Formula is a product using natural ingredients that helps the skin to fight stretch marks. Stretch marks, or striae, develop when the body changes rapidly due to weight gain, natural growth, or pregnancy. The skin is not able to keep up with this growth, leading to the marks that so many people try to fight off. While striae do not pose any health danger, they do leave many people feeling insecure about their own body, something that Hautbauer aims to solve.

"We have sought out the most effective natural ingredients that have been proven in clinical studies to work on stretch marks and we have combined these in one cream, where each ingredient contributes its unique properties to provide the best of all worlds," adds Suzy Holmes. "The formulation of our stretch mark cream is based on naturopathic principles, which is your guarantee for a product that is not just good for your stretch marks, but also good for your skin in general."

One of the reasons why the product is so popular with pregnant women is due to the fact that it contains only natural ingredients. Since anything placed on the skin is eventually absorbed by the body, women are particularly keen to not use any chemicals that could potentially harm their baby.
