November 4, 2016; Boynton Beach, FL: Survivalist Magazine, the leading digital publication in the emergency preparedness community, eagerly announces the release of a new eBook titled The Mysteries of Making Moonshine. In keeping with the parent company's mission statement, this eBook and other guides offered by Survivalist Magazine are produced digitally to reduce carbon footprints and environmental impacts, thereby creating an eco-friendly attitude and atmosphere unfamiliar to the physical print industry.

"In my previous book, Build Your Own Still, I shared valuable information and insight on creating your own moonshine still," states Tristan Trubble, the up and coming author of several eBooks. "This book picks up where that one left off and dives right into the art of manufacturing moonshine. There are several recipes for making mash and distilling the finished product. My hope is that the information contained in this eBook will provide readers with further direction for individual research."

Due to legal concerns this book does not provide explicit details or blueprints for manufacturing moonshine; however, it does share valuable insight that cannot be overlooked. This latest digital offering has been published with flip book style formatting; incorporating familiarity with conventional physical print publications.

The Mysteries of Making Moonshine discusses the legalities and illegalities of owning, operating, and maintaining a moonshine still.

?Although considered illegal at the state and federal level, making moonshine may be a viable source of income in the event of a total collapse and catastrophe,? explains Trubble. ?In the aftermath of a world changing event, the rule of law will most likely be suspended, if not eliminated altogether. Those with the ability to manufacture moonshine will be able to barter and trade their finished product for the goods and services they require. That being said, the information contained in this eBook is intended for educational and entertainment purposes only.?

Survivalist magazine, one of the most respected leaders in the emergency preparedness and disaster survival industry, strives to maintain daily contact with their fans, followers, and members through a variety of online portals, such as webinars, podcasts, summits, workshops, articles, white papers, emails, DIY projects, survival guides and new blog posts on Steemit.
