

Status Transportation Unveils Status Dispatch Soft

November 07, 2016

November 07, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Status Transportation has completed the creation of Status Dispatch Soft; a software focused on taking the company's trucking operations to another level.

While it still awaits proper licensing and approval by the ICT authorities, the new software already promises to speed up the trucking operations of the company by a great extent. A recent test on the software's abilities for instance surpassed the expectations of many people at the company. When installed during a test run last week, the company's spokesperson noted that "He and many other employees at the Status Transportation were taken aback by the speed and efficiency with which the software helped run the company."

"It has been on operation for only three days, and most of our employees have already learnt how to use it. Qualifying shippers is now easier than ever before, and what's even better is that we can even use it to quicken the settlement process to all of our owner operators," Mr. Erik Chavez said.

When asked about the security of the system and whether it could compromise the safety of the company's private data, Erik Chavez from Status Transportation, was quick to note that the in-house built software had been completed with the help of the most skilled professionals. He also noted that the manner in which the software had been designed made it hack proof and therefore impossible for any to bypass its passwords or member login details.

?Status dispatch soft runs smoothly and efficiently on the first version already explains how good its creators are. And before the software was even created, we had talked to our stakeholders and explained to them that security of the software and efficiency were two of our top most priorities. Now I can confidently assure you that Status dispatch soft will be one of the most secure, fast and efficient systems to ever grace a trucking company in our country,? Erik noted.

?If this software lives its dream of being a revolutionary, custom made catalyst of an improved up load booking process, an instant qualifier for shippers and brokers and a great tool that will efficiently harness the settlement processes for the owner operators, Status Transportation could become one of the biggest and most efficient trucking companies in the country.? Paul Robbins added while doing Status Transportation reviews.

It is not the first time technology has steered a company away from stiff competition and elevated them into a league of their own; and this software could probably be the difference in what Status Transportation will be five years from now. If successful, Status transportation will also be one of the few trucking companies in the country that relies on their staff for high-end revolutionary technological innovations.
