Minden, NV company DenadaDance has announced that they have recently launched their toe separators for bunions and that these have already proven to be highly popular because people are finding the comfort they have been seeking. The company explained that they have developed the product because they have noted that more and more people are suffering from issues with their toes and feet. Women are particularly afflicted by this, as fashion often encourages them to wear uncomfortable shoes in unnatural shapes.

Elena Vera, manager at DenadaDance, says: "Take one look in a shoe store today, and you will struggle to find a pair of women's shoes that is actually designed to properly support the foot. Or, if you do, you will find that they look like boxes and have absolutely no style. By wearing these uncomfortable and tight shoes, women regularly develop bunions, corns, hammer toes, and other feet problems. Men have these problems as well, although to a lesser degree. We are happy to have released our toe separators and to hear that so many people have found relief through them."

Since having been released, the product has received well over 100 positive reviews, making it a 4.5 star rated item on Amazon. The reviews have come from people from all walks of life, including one woman who suffers from arthritis, and used the DenadaDance toe separators as a last ditched attempt to avoid surgery. She now no longer requires surgery and has had her pain reduced by 95%.

Another woman freely admits that she had worn too many pointy toes, which had led to her developing a bunion on her big toe. When the pain started to become so severe that she could no longer ignore it, she decided to try the toe separators. Having never tried them before, she was unsure what to expect, but found that she could feel the difference within 24 hours of wearing them. Her toes had started to return to their proper shape and placement, and she could even wear the separators at night to ensure they didn't move back again.

The DenadaDance toe separators for bunions are currently exclusively available on Amazon, where they have received a huge amount of positive attention and reviews.
