Howe & Associates, with offices in Alpharetta, Atlanta and Marietta, Georgia, has been assisting clients with personal injury cases for a number of years. The law firm has now announced that Richard Howe, a managing partner, has been featured in a recent edition of Attorney at Law Magazine. An interview with the Atlanta personal injury lawyer outlined how passionate the firm is about helping clients with their personal injury law needs.

Howe states in the magazine interview that the firm, "Has the skill to handle complex issues arising from personal injury as well as various other legal topics."

Founded years ago by the late Karl J. Howe, Howe & Associates has a staff of attorneys with a collective 20 years or trial and litigation experience. Karl Howe was recognized in Georgia by The Commercial Law League of America as the first attorney in the state to specialize in creditor's rights.

Richard Howe says that the firm today still holds on to those past values, and in the interview states that they, "Perform a number of legal services on a very reasonable fee structure, because we want our clients to experience zero risk."

Howe states that his firm provides clients with free evaluations to determine their needs and then works to ensure that the outcome of their case is satisfactory. He says that being featured in the prominent legal magazine only goes to show that the community as a whole trusts Howe & Associates to deliver high quality legal representation for a number of issues.
