Healthcare regulations and rules are becoming increasingly complex. The professionals at Billing Blues can take care of billing and coding services for medical facilities.

Billing Blues is pleased to announce that it offers an end-to-end revenue cycle management solution to large or small medical facilities. The company has more than a decade of medical billing and coding experience, using top-tier software dedicated to obtaining reimbursement more quickly. The business unit works with clinics and HMOs through out the United States to provide medical billing, insurance claims processing and adjudication, eligibility verification, hospital profitability monitoring and other back office services.

The medical billing services begin with a free consultation, designed to assist clients through the changing rules and regulations regarding health care reimbursement. A long list of services is provided through the management system. These services include insurance verification, patient demographic entry, CPT and ICD-9 coding, charge entry, claims submission, payment posting, A/R follow-up, denial management and reporting.

Medical coding services are a significant part of the process. Hiring the top service firm means that the revenue increases due to focused efforts. The medical practice can concentrate on providing health care services rather than on coding efforts. Professional coders mean fewer coding errors. Professionals have the most current knowledge of the regulations and also have access to the technology which will enhance the process of accurate coding.

According to a spokesperson for the firm, "Our reliable medical coding and auditing staff, cutting-edge software and professional adoption services work seamlessly toward the same goal ensuring your coding is accurate, compliant and timely."

There is also a savings in miscellaneous costs associated with back office personnel, by using remote coders. Some of the most obvious include lower insurance for the employee benefits. Reduced paper usage is another benefit for utilizing outsourced firms to provide billing and coding services.

HCC Coding services are also available through professionals at Billing Blues. The characteristics of the SSD Model include additive and perspective modes, site neutrality, diagnostic sources, multiple chronic diseases considered, hierarchies, disease and disabled Interactions, and demographic variables.
