OfficeStock.ca, a used office furniture dealer, has now added new and modern furniture to their 15,000 square foot warehouse. In addition to selling office furniture, the company delivers, installs and removes old furniture.

Toronto ON: OfficeStock.ca is pleased to announce the expansion of their product line to include new and modern office furniture. The company has been known for its offering of used office furnishings, so the additional selection of new furniture enables their customers to select styles and brands that fit the needs of any office space. Customers who purchase furniture for office space can also arrange for delivery and installation of their new configurations. The professional furniture installers at OfficeStock.ca will also remove any old furniture pieces. Cross-border delivery is available for those south of the border and there are opportunities for wholesale pricing and purchasing.

While customers are able to order online 24/7, the store and delivery services are also available every day of the week, so there is no need to interrupt the work-flow in the office in order to replace old, worn, or outdated office furniture. With over 15,000 square feet of warehouse, whether an office space is small, mid-sized or large, the professionals at OfficeStock.ca can accommodate the needs of any space. The large selection of inventory ensures that everybody can find the right piece to suit the design and function of their unique office space.

A company spokesperson elaborated, "Our categories of office furnishings include chairs, tables, computer stations, file cabinets and storage units. The office desks we offer are available in a variety of sizes, finishes and styles. Our most popular model of desk is the L-shaped desk which often includes a side cabinet with doors for extra storage. Popular finishes range from metal to cherry wood. Desks for specific purposes, such as a reception desks can also be found in wide varieties."

The team at Officestock.ca is dedicated to boosting green business by offering furniture which is used, recycled and refurbished. For new or existing businesses, the selection of pieces from Officestock.ca helps to support a clean, sustainable and green planet.
