

Hawaii Based Company Announces TheLulapops & Fustini's Tasting Event

June 06, 2015

June 06, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

LulaPops and Fustini's, Hawaiian based companies, have announced their Clothing & Tastings event, which will be taking place on June 12, 2015. The event will bring together the designs and dresses of LulaPops with gourmet oils, vinegars, and other treats from Fustini's. The run time of the pairing will begin at 7pm and end at 9pm, and is located at Shops at Wailea.

The event has been announced both through the businesses' websites and social media accounts, such as Facebook. In one such announcement, LulaPops asks Facebook followers to add themselves and friends to the event for a chance to enjoy the clothing and gourmet options being offered. They write:

"Come sample delicious jams, dressings and tapenades with Fustini's Gourmet Oils & Vinegars. We'll help you get cute and comfy with TheLuLaPops.com skirts and dresses too!"

The LulaPops franchise is based on the brand Lula Roe, which provides clothing described as cute and comfy, for women. The fabrics utilized in the brand are said to be buttery soft, light weight, comfortable, and easy to mix and match with other materials. This is a contrast when placed with the Fustini's brand of gourmet tapenade and jams, which come in a variety of flavors, including artichoke parmesan and onion balsamic, among many others.

The June function seems to be a method of bringing together two small local businesses based from larger franchises, which will make it easier for both parties to share their brand with the local community and flourish as companies. They have made it clear that this is an exciting opportunity to share their passion with the people of the island, and to show them what the businesses are all about. LulaPops has said the following regarding their unique form of operation, and how others can get involved outside of this one local event:

"If you love maxi skirts, pencil skirts, and printed legging styles, we bring them to you. Ask us to host a pop up shop and invite your friends, family, neighbors, and co-workers for little in-house night out, girls brunch, tea party, tapas and wine."

Both companies involved in the June Clothing & Tastings fun encourage those who are interested in learning more about the businesses to check out their websites or contact them for more information. They also make the suggestion that fans of the products add them through social media feeds so that they can stay up to date on this event, and other local events which the companies will be putting on.

Images of skirts, dresses, and more, which will be featured at the event, can be seen on the company website. They are available in girls sizes, women's sizes, and plus sizes for their customer's convenience. Products are made in the United States and prints vary from item to item, so the LulaPop team makes it known that customers might want to act fast if they see a specific garment which they wish to purchase.

There are currently no other LulaPop and Fustini's Clothing & Tastings events planned for the future, but both businesses are excited to be working together for the coming festivities.
