November 14, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

It is now official; grandtimeseats.com will be facilitating the purchasing of tickets for more than ten different sports and showbiz events. This comes after the company re-opened their website to the public, and after it announced they would work to avail concert tickets for almost all large events happening in New York City and beyond.

GrandTimeSeats has been availing sports tickets through its websites seamlessly and effectively for years, and the move to widen its target market has been seen as a great advancement to accommodating the needs of all revelers. This announcement also coincides with the re-opening of their website, grandtimeseats.com, which had been briefly inaccessible for maintenance reasons. With the company now fully open and functional, customers who love to revel throughout the Broadway theater halls and entertainment joints can now book their tickets on time and without any hassles.

The news about GrandTimeSeats availing more tickets for different sports and showbiz events was first posted on their site upon re-opening, but later spread to customers who reached out the management for credibility.

?It is very true. It is correct that we shall be availing more sports tickets from today henceforth. We have also enhanced our site so that we can serve you better,? Mr. Brian Keith Moss, the company?s spokesperson was quoted saying. When asked if their site could be accessed again, Brian said he following:

?We are sorry that our site was inaccessible for few hours yesterday. But we have fixed the issues and updated it to reflect our inclusion of additional Broadway tickets and other sports that were note there before.?

For the last few years, Grand Time Seats has been successful and revered by many revelers who find buying tickets through them easy and time saving. The past few months for this company have especially been tremendous, mainly after they began offering concert ticket buying tips. And with the increased advancement of their services, the company looks forward to becoming a giant ticket seller for all states in the country.

?We feel honored by the tremendous support and support our customers give us on a daily basis. We are especially grateful for everyone who sends us your message of support and your ideas of how we can serve you better. It is your support that motivates us to keep offering great services in the hope that we shall one day be able to reach everyone in this great city and the country at large,? Mr. Brian noted.

While Grand Times Seats is not the first site to facilitate sports tickets, it is one of a few companies that are really serious about facilitating the sale and education of ticket buying to sports lovers and showbiz fans as well. And by pushing beyond the limits of sports to offer Broadway tickets, the company is setting a mark to begin its journey on reaching as many customers as possible.
