GrowUpSmart Announces November Giveaway For Leather Backgammon Set

November 17, 2016

November 17, 2016 -
GrowUpSmart, the educational toys and games company, has recently announced their November Giveaway contest for which three backgammon sets are at stake. The company explained that they are hosting the giveaway to celebrate the launch of their new 17" leather backgammon set.

The contest will run from now until November 24, 2016. Entrees are limited to those over the age of 18 and residents of the United States. "We thought this would be a fun way to announce our newest backgammon game set and to show our customers how much we appreciate them," says Martin Reinhold with GrowUpSmart.

The new leather backgammon set features a large 17 inch by 20.7 inch board along with a briefcase with handle to hold the set. The outside of the briefcase is black PU leather with white stitching and the inside is green felt with red and white points. The set includes four dice, two leather dice cups, and red and white checkers with an instruction booklet for those new to the game. The company states that their online video course on how to play backgammon is also included with purchase.

"It's a beautiful set," says Reinhold. "We feel that it would make an excellent gift for the upcoming holidays, which is why our giveaway is timed so perfectly. Join the giveaway and just maybe you'll win a backgammon set that you can give to a loved one who wants to play the game."

GrowUpSmart states that all of their game sets are constructed of the highest quality of materials and designed to provide hours of fun. Those who have never played the game before can learn with the included instruction booklets and video instruction courses offered by the company.

The giveaway is ongoing now until the close date and Reinhold urges everyone interested to participate as soon as possible to avoid missing the deadline. The company has a full description of the backgammon game sets on the company official website and those interested in learning more about the November contest can do so by visiting http://growupsmart.com/backgammon-giveaway/.
